BY JAMES AVERILL

PEOPLE who dump rubbish in Luton could be handed a £400 fine in a bid to crack down on flytipping cases which have soared by a third in the last two years.

The illegal dumping of waste is causing a headache for Luton Borough Council, with the 3,262 recorded incidents in 2013/14 rising to a whopping 4,756 in

The cost of removing and investi-ity a 'significant amount' each year. Neighbouring Central Bedfordshire Council spent nearly £100,000 clearing up just over 5,000 incidents.

Back in January, Luton on Sunday reported residents near the neighbourhood recycling centres in Old Bedford Road and Lewsey Farm were calling for 'tougher action'.

It appears the council has listened and is trying to push through plans that would see a new £400 fixed penalty notice for flytipping introduced for the first time.

Current enforcement guidelines mean that small amounts can be dealt with by means of a litter fine of £75, but bigger waste dumps currently have to be investigated and offenders prosecuted. The new fixed penalty notice, which will be voted on tomorrow, would allow the council more options.

It would mean the authority has the power to fine flytippers £400, to be paid within 14 days, or £250 if they opt to pay up within ten days.

Recent areas targeted by fly-tip-pers include Portland Road (pictured above) and a lane leading to Keech Hospice Care's entrance. They have since been cleared.

Liz Searle, CEO of Keech Hospice Care, said the latest incident was as recent as the end of April.

She added: "We hope this would have a positive impact and drive down the increasing levels of fly tipping in the community."

The council hopes it will reduce and prevent 'repeat offenders'. Members of the council's execu-tive, which will decide whether to adopt the plans, have been warned in council papers that voting against the scheme could see 'the environmental standard of the

Saima's sister charged with brutal murder

A WOMAN has appeared in court for the first time after being charged with the murder of her older sister.

Sabah Khan, 26, is accused of killing 34-year-old Saima Khan (pictured) at their house in Overstone Road on Monday, May 23.

Ms Khan, from Luton, was remanded in custody on Thursday morning and her case was sent straight to crown court where she will appear later this month.

She appeared at Luton Magistrates' Court and kept her head bowed throughout the brief hearing, where she only spoke to confirm her

Mother-of-four Saima was found lying in a pool of blood at their property at around 11.30pm while fellow family members are believed to have been at a funeral

No details of the case were heard on Thursday and Sabah will appear at Luton Crown Court on June 6.

Khan was arrested on Tuesday, shortly after Bedfordshire Police had urged residents to remain calm following the horrific incident.

She was charged on Wednesday after police were granted more time to question her.

Saima's husband Hafeez Rehman, a taxi driver, said the family's hearts had been 'torn apart' and their four children had been deprived of their mother.

Party poopers can't spoil our town's fun

LAST weekend, months of preparation and planning culminated in one of the most spectcaular parades this side of Notting Hill.

Around 50 community groups, schools and troupes came together to show what feathers, glitter and a bit of imagination can do for Luton Canrival 2016 - sponsored by this newspaper.

Sadly once the proper partygoers had gone home, a few idiots decided to put on their own show (see opposite).

Some have insisted this was not the work of Luton locals but outsiders - the truth appears to be a combination of both.

And although it is perhaps not surprising that after a day of partying and probably some drinking, things came to blows – it is disappointing.

Though lessons may need to be learned about how and why this situation arose, I spoke to one member of the force this week who said the number of arrests made was not unusual for a weekend.

We do not want mass disorder on our streets but perhaps we should also try to keep things in context.

£2m homeless overspend as housing crisis deepens

BY JAMES AVERILL editor@lsnmedia.com

LUTON Council is projected to overspend on its homeless budget by £2million – as new statistics show the stark state of the housing crisis in the town.

Out of 11,715 units of social housing in the town only 617 became empty last year – and there are 11,300 households on a register waiting to be rehomed. More than a thousand (1,016) of these households are currently in temporary accommodation, with 218 in B&B – including 75 placed in B&Bs outside the borough.

Figures also show that the gap between the Local Housing Allowance – benefits for people renting in the private sector – and the cost of renting are increasing.

All this is leading to more people turning to the council for help and the authority is currently projected to be £2million over its homeless budget for 2016/17.

Councillor Tom Shaw, the port-folio holder for housing at Luton Borough Council, said: "Housing nationwide is a complete disaster.

"Rents keep going up in Luton and people are really struggling to get a place of their own."

One of the council's current schemes to try and ease the problems is a deal with Cheyne Capital.
The investment fund management group is leasing back property it has either acquired or is building for the council to manage, let out and maintain.

Half of the units would be let out on Local Housing Allowance rates which are cheaper than market - which will increase the number of affordable homes

The flats are mostly located on Old Bedford Road and New Bedford Road, including sites such as the former Drill Hall.

By placing just 18 clients in this affordable housing, the council will save £545,000 - a significant chunk of the £2million overspend.

The council will be able to have The council will be able to buy the flats at the end of the lease in 30 years for a nominal £1 fee. Cllr Shaw added: "These kinds of deals have been happening in Europe for years, but it's one of the first of its kind over here - so it's good news for people in Luton."

Chaos on the streets as mass brawl erupts

nick.smith@lutononsunday.co.uk

A WOMAN has told how she was caught in the crossfire of a mass brawl which flared up after Luton International Carnival and lasted more than an hour.
Police chiefs have described 'ugly scenes as groups of youths violently clashed with officers in St George's

The trouble kicked off around 8.15pm last Sunday following the end of the carnival – the biggest one-day event of its kind in the country.

Scores of officers attempted to regain control with batons as punches flew and missiles were thrown.

Monalisa Sibanda witnessed the violence firsthand and told Luton on Sunday: "I was just walking back home from the carnival when it kicked off. I saw one guy hit by a police van at low speed when it arrived, which knocked him to the ground before he was arrested.

"There were three different groups, two from Luton and one from London, and I ended up caught up between them, there must have been around 50 people involved."

Ms Sibanda was forced to stay in the area for over an hour because Bedfordshire Police had formed a cordon. She added: "I was waiting for friends in the area and the fight ended up happening between us.

DISORDER: Video posted online shows youths clash with police in St George's Square

"It took me an hour to get to them after it had all calmed down.'

Bedfordshire Police Superintendent Mark Upex described the fighting as 'unacceptable'.

He added: "A small minority of people inflicted violent behaviour on the town attempting to ruin a day that had been celebrated in harmony."

Bedfordshire's PCC, Kathryn Holloway, has blamed 'gang mem-bers' from outside the town for stirring up the incident. Councillor Hazel Simmons, leader of the council, said she was 'absolutely appalled by the scenes' and congratulated carnival organisers on a succesful event and an otherwise peaceful day.

Four men were stabbed in the brawl and two men have been charged.
Daniel Idiabeta, 18, of Oakley Road,

Luton and Nathan Kiasala, 19, of Styles Close, Luton, are charged with violent disorder, possession of an offensive weapon and causing grievous bodily harm with intent. Both men appeared at Luton Magistrates Court on Wednesday and have been remanded pending a court date.

Newlands crash victim Tribute to

THE brother of a man who died in a road traffic collision has paid tribute. Zoltan Riz, 32, died following a collision on Newlands Road, Luton, on May 20. His brother, Tibor Riz said: "He was the best person who I ever met

"Everyone loved him in the UK and back at home as well."

Zoltan was a Hungarian national who had been working in Kingston-uponThames. Mr Riz added: "He was working as a chef and had just been pro-moted at Bella Italia."

Mr Riz was travelling in a BMW with his friend Peter Fulop, 30, who was also a Hungarian national. At 7.20pm their car collided with an Audi.

Emergency services attended, however the driver of the BMW was pronounced dead at the scene.

One of the passengers in the vehicle was airlifted to The Royal Free Hospital in London but later died from his injuries, a second passenger suffered minor injuries.

The driver of the Audi remains in a critical condition at Luton and Dunstable Hospital.

Anyone with any information should call the roads policing team on 101.

IF YOU suffer from low back pain and sciatica. vou are one of over 20 million adults in the UK with this often crippling spinal condition.

Shooting, stabbing and burning pains from the low back, sometimes with additional pain through the buttocks and down the legs are all symptoms of a pinched nerves often called "sciatica"

In severe cases, it can lead to muscle wasting, numbness and constant tingling down to the tip of the toes. Left untreated, the intense pain can rapidly wear you down and drain the joy out of life.

That is, until now...

Recent advances in the treatment of sciatica and lower back pain have led to the development and huge success of Non-Surgical Re-Constructive Spinal Care.

The excellent results of this treatment have been published in major medical journals. With success rates as high as 90% some back surgeons recommending their patients try this treatment first before having back surgery.

In Bedfordshire, you can try Non-Surgical Re-constructive Spinal Care at the Atlas Wellness Centre - the office of low back pain and sciatica relief expert Peter Olsson.

Peter and his team of fully trained spinal care specialists have helped over 4,026 patients find relief from their agonising back pain and

Breakthrough relief for

k pain and sciatica

According to Peter, "We use a combination of ultra-advanced technology, not found elsewhere in Bedfordshire, for precisely diagnosing the cause of your low back pain and sciatica; and a unique programme for reconstructing the damaged area causing the pain; this means superior long-term results for most people."

Because the treatment is nonsurgical, safe and easy, most patients report an almost immediate relief from their pain.

Patient Jeff P. from Cambridge says, "My back pain was unbearable but the worst thing was the searing burning pain I felt in my buttock and

I couldn't work or do anything useful and the drugs my GP prescribed hardly did anything.

My wife insisted I respond to one of these ads, I thought it would be a total waste of time, but I'm so glad she kept on at me.

Thank god I called your number, I'm 95% better in just a couple of weeks."

Your invitation for a comprehensive consultation and examination to pinpoint the cause of your low back pain and Luton on Sunday has teamed up with the spine therapy specialists at Atlas Wellness Centre, to help readers find relief from their persistent back and sciatic pain.

Man nabbed dying aunt's life savings

BY COURT REPORTER editor@lsnmedia.co.uk

GREAT nephew who fleeced a dying relative who 'loved and trusted him like a son' out of her life savings

BMW cars.
"Gillian Kirk was a remarkable woman who thought the world of you. You were the son she never had," said the Judge. "However you betrayed that trust in an

Politicians didn't pay tax on time

TWO councillors ordered to court after failing to pay their council tax.

Both Councillor Jacqui Burnett and Councillor Asma Rathore had to be summoned to court by Luton Borough Council within the last five years for failing to pay the bill. The Labour councillors have since paid off their debts with no tax amounts outstanding.

The council also confirmed that ten councillors had received 13 reminders to pay their council tax since May 2011. The unpaid amoun from the councillors totalled more than £2,500.

A spokesman from the council said: "We felt it was only right to alert the affected councillors that we would be releasing their names."

Councillor Burnett is the portfolio holder for people and places and has been a councillor in the town for ten years, while Councillor Rathore has been serving as an elected member for the last five years.

For Councillor Rathore in particular this is not the first political embarrassment.

In February 2012 she was spared by the Labour party after claiming she 'did not realise' she had to disclose that family members had been convicted for fraudulent activities.

Both councillors failed to respond for comment before our print deadline. Harry Davis, campaign manager for the TaxPayers' Alliance, said: "Council Tax has risen by almost 60 per cent in Luton in the last two decades. So local taxpayers have every right to be angry that their money is being spent pursuing elected repre sentatives who haven't paid on time."

The Luton Council spokesman added: "In Luton we treat the collection of debt from councillors in exactly the same way as any other householder. If anyone is struggling to pay their council tax we advise them to get in touch as soon as possible."

Group Managing Director Marcus McGee believes that Which? have endorsed Cloudy2Clear's long standing at all times, 'Our service is simple. If your double glazing has misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Whilst a number of tradespeople perhaps don't focus on customer care as much as they should do, we make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle.

Locally Cloudy2Clear service the Luton, Dunstable & approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated as both my customers and, obviously a body as nationally important as Which? now recognise.

Emma, who owns a tattoo studio with her husband Curtis, 31, has since contacted manufacturers Premier Foods who produce the sauce, to make a formal complaint.

She said they offered their apologies and have sent her a packaging kit so she can return the jar - and the metal - back to them to investigate.

But she wants to make other parents aware of the issue and is calling for supermarkets to pull the jars from their shelves.

Emma added: "It breaks my heart to think a child could be injured when they're just eat-ing their dinner. How could that be allowed to happen?

"All I want from this is for the jars to be pulled from the shelves until Premier Foods can be sure there is no metal in their products.
"For such a large company,

A spokesman for Premier Foods said they would be 'fully investigating' and that the quality of products was of 'utmost importance to us'.

READALLOVER

HERE at Luton on Sunday we're always delighted when we see a young reader who takes some time out to read their favourite local newspaper. Even so, little Riley is possibly our youngest ever participant in the Read All Over section. In the tender years of life, admittedly the picture of the product of the tures may be of more interest than the words. But nonetheless, it's a great start Riley – enjoy reading the newspaper for years to come!

Don't feed the birds

WITH regard to keeping our town tidy I think a good move would be to ban people from feeding the pigeons.

There are hoards of them around the Park Street entrance to the The Mall and the droppings from outside Farm Foods to The Mall entrance are disgusting, let alone having to negotiate walking through them.

The council appear to power wash the seating every day which is costly, only for the vermin to return barring people being able to sit and relax in comfort. M.R.G.

Inspirational Carnival

THE Luton 2016 Carnival was excellent overall for its 40th anniversary, especially where there was so much effort made into the contents of the carnival and most of all the parade itself (pictured).

The aesthetics from the costumes were very pleasing to the eye and had attracted thousands of people.

The best moments were the amount of community cohesion which emphasises the fact that people of many different faiths, cultures and backgrounds co-exist together in the most fun, liveliest place possible in

Visitors were able to enjoy delicious street food with many different ori-gins which included Pakistani/ Indian, Jamaican, Chinese and many more along with a variety of adrenaline pumping, entertaining and enjoyable amusement rides, especially the Daredevil, Bumper Cars, Xlr8, The Twister and so many more for people of all ages to enjoy especially

Other activities included music from many different cultures and many DJs at the site who played music non-stop so visitors could dance till they dropped even if the weather wasn't so great at first, how-ever it did brighten up the mood when it improved later on in the day. Now let's talk about the main attraction which was the parade itself: the parade was busting with bright vivid colours, art and creativity that inspired hundreds of people along with costumes that represent many Schools located in Luton, National Radio Stations, staples of different cultures including music, many known charities and Luton itself so it can gain an even more positive reputation than it already has

The Carnival arts costumes dazzled many people with the images of many objects and animals such as peaobjects and animals such as pea-cocks, eagles, parrots, robots, drag-ons with unique, exciting, colourful patterns and designs on all of them, which portrayed the true message of diversity and this was the true focus of the carnival along with amazing abstract art.

Sort out bikers

I READ a letter the other week from the Bushmead resident about illegal motorbikes on the fields and paths around Bushmead.

I live close and I've seen from my bedroom window how they go down the alleyways at absolutely ridiculous speeds.

They do it regularly.
There are people with dogs down these alleyways walking their dogs in the fields and it I find it truly amazing nobody has been seriously injured.

Drug users use the alleyways to score.

There are needles scattered about. The police put CCTV there but the cameras were nicked by idiots.

I don't know what else to say but something should be done about it. Mr Ferguson Address supplied

BLOGGER OF THE WEEK: Johanne Hudson-Lett

Bring the carnival to life

THIS week's blog entry comes from the UK Centre for Carnival Arts' marketing manager Johanne Hudson-Lett, who speaks about her experience in organising an event like the carnival and also celebrates the 40th anniversary of the event...

FOUR months ago I was asked to take on the task as marketing manager for Luton International Carnival, to add to my existing role as learning and participation officer.

Why not? I thought, I'm always up for a challenge, and what a challenge!

Long working days, sleepless nights, prayers to the weather gods, hours of meetings with schools, organisations, the council, mash groups, the police, security, designers, artists, volunteers, the list of people involved was endless.

The 40th anniversary of Luton International Carnival took place in and around Wardown Park. The day was a great success, with families and friends coming together to enjoy the creativity and culture of carnival. The months of hard work cumulated in a day of spectacular colour.

Between 12 and 6pm, Wardown Park had been transformed into a sea of iovful faces and families having a good time. What have I learnt from the experience? I now know that those involved in creating such a spectacular day are committed. Committed to the vision of bringing Luton to life in a festival of colour and culture and that a large majority of Lutonians are proud of their carnival and have shown their appreciation and love for the town by quashing the actions of the mindless thugs that obviously have no respect for the town.

Our social media sites are an array of colour showing the artistic talent that this town holds. We have the power to come together regardless of age, colour or religion, to produce breath-taking carnival costumes and leave people inspired to.

The new headlines of stabbings and riots has detracted from what was a fabulous family event, no violence, no-one was stabbed at carnival.

What happed at carnival was exactly what we planned; an event that would embrace all cultures and appeal to all the family. We would like to say a big thank you to all of those who have supported Luton Carnival and we are humbled by the amazing comments of praise and the large number of photos and videos of the parade that have been loaded onto our social media page.

Luton International's 40th Carnival should be remembered for amazing costumes, the representation of different cultures and of course the fantastic children who embraced the spirit of carnival and

Chaos at airport as taxi drivers protest

BY JAMES AVERILL

editor@lutononsunday.co.uk

TAXI drivers at Luton Airport vented their fury at the loss of a contract by holding a demonstration on roads into the airport this week.

The unofficial protest

The unofficial protest caused chaos for commuters as up to 150 hackney carriage drivers 'plied for hire' on roads leading up to the airport – blocking the route for visitors to the airport

People took to social media to complain about the delays to their journey, with some missing flight connections.

The protest came shortly after Luton Airport announced they were handing over a long term contract with local drivers to operate at the airport to London-based firm Addison Lee, leading to job loss fears.

that happened. If individual drivers want to ply for hire then that is something they are in control of, we cannot stop them. And they are entitled to do that.

"There are discussions ongoing over holding an official demonstration in the upcoming weeks."

He added that the group was pushing for a taxi rank at the airport which could be used for local drivers to ply for hire – which would give customers the 'choice' between local drivers and the new fleet of vehicles from Addison Lee.

A Luton Airport spokesman said: "We regret the impact the unofficial protest may have had on people's journeys. We worked closely with the police to ensure normal traffic conditions resumed as quickly as possible.

"We are monitoring the situation so any further disruption is kept to a minimum."

editor@lsnmedia.com

A PLANNING application for a new block of flats, hotel and medical centre has been sub-mitted for the former Vauxhall Motors site on Kimpton Road.

The plans would see 685 flats erected - and the complex would also feature a hotel comprising of 209 bedrooms, conferencing and banqueting facilities, as well as a medical wellbeing centre.

The site has been vacant for more than ten

£3.5m plan to ease pupil place squeeze

THE expansion of a High School in Luton will help ease a shortage of school places, according to the councillor responsible for education and young people.

Tomorrow evening Luton Borough Council will decide whether to approve spending £3.5million of capital funding to expand Challney High School for Boys.

It comes as secondary school pupil numbers are predicted to increase by 25 per cent by January 2020.

The expansion project has been backed by Councillor Mahmood Hussain, who is the council's portfolio holder for young people.

He told Luton on Sunday: "I think it will go a long way to help meet needs, because we have a shortage of places in the town, particularly when it comes to boys. "The school has finally agreed to have the expansion as they have the space and capacity to do this compared to a lot of other schools

Challney was selected as it is heavily oversubscribed, with waiting lists for all years.

HOPEFUL: Cllr Mahmood Hussain, inset, is confident expansion of Challney High School for Boys will help ease a shortage of places

In recent years it has not been able to offer all of the children in its catchment area a place in Year Seven.

Currently there are also 1,087 more boys than girls in the town's school system.

The school is rated 'Outstanding' by Ofsted, and is an academy run by The Chiltern Learning Trust.

Expansion plans would see the creation of a new block featuring 14 new classrooms, a new courtyard playground and a remodelling of the school entrances.

It would see the number of pupils increase from 825 to approximately 1,200. Councillor Hussain added: "At the moment we are just about coping, so I would not call it a crisis at this stage. But if we had not done these expansions it probably would have been a crisis.

"We will obviously have to keep looking at the situation as it progresses."

The EU question:

FROM bendy bananas to immigration, it will come down to one question come June 23: in or out? Two politicians battled it out in front of an audience of Bedfordshire business leaders last week. SARAH COX reports for the next in our EU series. . .

In the blue corner, and fighting to remain: Labour's Richard Howitt MEP, who represents our region in Brussels.

And in the red corner, Bedford and Kempston's member of parliament: Conservative Richard Fuller.

Refereeing proceedings – which, despite the best efforts of Europe in the Final Countdown build-up track, were refreshingly friendly – was Professor of Global Economy at Cranfield University Joe Nellis University, Joe Nellis.

The speakers shared views on everything from the future of trade agreements to immigration and the politics of the EU campaigns. But the event, held by accountants MacIntyre Hudson at Bedford Blues Rugby Club last Friday, also gave the chance for audience members to pose their own questions and included several polls to gauge the feeling of the room.

Before questions got going,
Prof Nellis, took the temperature of the audience with the first vote: 46% 'in', 28%
'out', the rest unsure.

Of the two Richards, Howitt took the stage first for an opening speech which emphasised the success of the 'peace project' that is Europe, appealing to the audience to consider facts, not scaremongering.

Fuller asked 'what does our judgement tell us is the right thing to do for our children, and our children's children? "When you vote on June 23, you are setting a reference point for politicians," he said. Perhaps the hottest topic of the night, with the revelation that net migration had risen to the second highest level on record hitting headlines this week,

was immigration.
Fuller insisted leaving the EU would allow for more border controls. He raised a point - which caused much discussion at the bar afterwards - about the current obligation to discriminate between internal and external EU migrants not being 'British'.

Michelle's passion for changing

BY STEPHEN PENN

FEELING lost and without hope, for whatever reason, can be a lonely place.

This was a problem Michelle Crook noticed during her 16 years in teaching and, in 2011, she set up Reactiv8 as a hobby to give support to those written off by the education system. She did not expect that five years later the Bedfordshire organisation would be supported by local authorities, schools and most recently the Beds, Northants, Cambs and Herts (BeNCH) Probation Service to help people of all ages across the whole of the county.

Michelle said: "I wanted to offer those in society who find themselves in a space where they don't feel valued to address their problems."

Her team of self-employed professionals bring expertise from industries including teaching, recruitment, and customer service to help bring a proposed to the programment of the programment of the princip tomer service to help bring peotomer service to help bring peo-ple back into society.

"We use British Military Coaching techniques to help develop skills that employers are looking for such as team-working and leadership all the while helping them sort their emotional and physical selves," Michelle added.

One man who saw the benefit of Michelle's programme, based in Kempston, is Paul Johnston. After suffering a brain aneurism and mental health problems while at university, he found himself in a dark place.

He told LoS: "I reached a point where it was either sign up to Reactiv8 or go into a psychiatric facility.

"Michelle and the team changed my life, got me back on track, and I am already on my way to recovery."

Paul now volunteers for Reactiv8, helping others who find themselves in need.

Michelle said: "So many of our former clients keep in touch and tell me that Reactiv8 has got them out of the dark places in their lives. We work with a wide array of people and help to change their outlook on life and make things better."

Now the former teacher is looking to expand the business even further and is hoping to get employers on board, to ensure that clients find their way into steady work that is suited to their skills. She also needs people to help by volunteering their time to Reactiv8.
Michelle said: "Anyone out there who is driven to make a difference, get in touch with us as we need mentors, coaches, admin staff, everything to help us reach more and more people."

Fans' guide

Well-travelled England supporter Jonathan Reed shares his tips on how to make the most of this summer's footballfest

TICKETS

ENGLAND'S total allocation for the three group games is 23,520, although the FA had to return tickets for the opener with Russia after failing to sell its allocation of nearly 11,000.

If you haven't secured your tickets through official channels such as the FA or UEFA, your options at this stage are to go down the secondary selling site route or buy outside the ground.

Secondary sites, such as StubHub and Viagogo, have tickets available for the England v Russia match from about £120 Not surprisingly, the England v Wales clash at the 35,000 Stade Bollaert-Delelis in Lens is attracting the greatest demand, and will set you back at least £350.

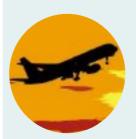

If you decide to wait until match day you won't be on your own. A recent Foreign Office survey of home nations fans planning to travel to France showed that more than half (57 per cent) do not have tickets. Of those, 29 per cent are hoping to buy at the ground.

Buying off a tout really is pot luck. A friend of mine chanced his arm and ended up schmoozing in the African FA hospitality box at the Nigeria v Romania group game in Toulouse in 1998, for the princely sum of £90.

TRAVEL >

NOTHING is certain in life but death and taxes. You can add to that travel websites being hit with a spike in bookings once the groups have been sorted for a major football championship.

It really does pay to shop around – even at this late stage.

Flying out from Heathrow to Marseille with BA on the Friday before the first group game, returning on the Sunday, will set you back more than £700. Ouch! But if you fly to Nice you can save around £300 and take the train on the day of the game (about £40 return).

A friend who is heading to France this month has been to every England away match in the past five years. He is flying out via Amsterdam and paid around £150 return when the draw was made. This cheaper method can still pay off, so get on those search engines.

If you're planning to go to all three England group games it will involve a fair amount of travelling. Marseille to Lens is more than 600 miles and it's another 450 miles to get back to St Etienne for the Slovakia match.

An interrail pass is ideal and allows a choice of unlimited travel on up to eight days within a one-month period. An adult can travel for four separate days at a cost of £179 but, be warned, it is compulsory to pre-book seats on some trains.

If money is no object, why not go to France in style on a Victor private jet service package? A multi-leg trip, flying out from London, and taking in the semi-finals in Lyon and Marseille before heading to Paris for the final on a six-seater Citation CJ3 jet will set back your group in the region of £14,000. Not exactly cheap, but definitely a trip to remember.

WHAT TO DO

MARSEILLE is France's second biggest city and at its heart is the Vieux Port, where many of the best bars and restaurants can be found.

In 2013 Marseille was the European Capital of Culture and it really is an atmospheric place.

The Chateau d'If, setting for Alexandre Dumas' The Count of Monte Cristo, is a 16th century island prison castle and can be easily reached from the Vieux Port. The Open Tour is one of the best ways to see the city.

It's a hop-on, hop-off service and costs roughly £15 for an adult. Art lovers are well catered for in Lens. The city is home to the Louvre-Lens, and hosts collections of the Musee du Louvre that are lent to the museum on a long-term basis.

WHERE TO STAT

IT really is jackpot time for hoteliers when England roll into town. With a predicted which are still available.

The late kick-off for the Russia

there will be few

trains leaving Marseille after the final whistle. Expect to pay at least four times the going rate for a room for the night, while the hostels are also extremely expensive. A couple of options worth pursuing are Airbnb or Homelidays.

Lens – where the ground capacity is greater than the town's population – will also present similar problems in terms of finding a bed for the night, while Lyon is the ideal place to be based for those making the trip to St Etienne.

There is a pace and rhythm about England's play which gives fans genuine optimism

Roy's boys are on a roll

by Frank Malley

ON June 11, England will line up against Russia in the Stade Velodrome in the edgy city of Marseille for their first group match in Euro 2016 with genuine hope and anticipation.

No one is saying they will win their first major football tournament since Alf Ramsey's boys lifted the World Cup half a century ago.

No one realistically is expecting the heady whirl of 20 years ago, when England reached the semi-finals of Euro 1996 to the captivating soundtrack of 'Three Lions'

England have let down their fans too often in the intervening years for that sort of expectation to take root, but there is a growing feeling that an exuberant England side could at last make an impact deep into a major tournament.

Youthful vigour and vibrancy are crucial to Hodgson, which is why he named Manchester United's emerging 18-year-old striker Marcus Rashford in his initial squad.

His biggest conundrum, though, is somewhat older in 30-year-old Wayne Rooney, his captain, record goalscorer and England talisman for more than a decade.

In the friendly against Germany in March, there was a glimpse of the new England, a hard-running, bright, innovative England with Harry Kane at its focal point.

Kane is England's firstchoice centre-forward. That is non-negotiable after a brilliant 25-goal season for Tottenham, where he has matured into a lethal striker.

After that, Hodgson has options. Lots of them. He could play Leicester's Jamie Vardy alongside Kane. He could play Rooney as a withdrawn striker behind Kane. He could play him wide in a front three, but that has never been Rooney's preferred role. He could leave his captain on the bench and use him as an impact player.

The point is that Rooney, the Rooney the conundrum as optimism grows for Hodgson

2004, is no longer a definite starter. If he is fully fit and rediscovers his finest form, it would be difficult to leave out a player with his scoring record and his positive influence on those around him.

But the fact that England have progressed with a pleasing tempo this past 12 months means Rooney's absence would not be the blow it might once have been.

Psychologically, England could not be in a better place. They qualified for Euro 2016 by winning all their matches in an admittedly easy group – and there is a pace and rhythm about their play which gives real hope to their fans.

In Dele Alli they possess an attacking midfelder with quick feet and vision, one who crucially has a close understanding with Tottenham team-mate Kane, and in Eric Dier they have a midfielder of composure and intelligence. They have attackers of real pace and a fine goalkeeper in Joe Hart.

Hodgson's biggest concern remains his defence where, despite the promise of John Stones, there is a brittleness about such as Chris Smalling, Gary Cahill, Kyle Walker and Rvan Bertrand.

Hodgson, however, has reason to be confident. "Whenever you go into a tournament you have to go into it hoping to win," he said. "If you ask any of the teams, they'll think they can do it.

No-one expected Denmark in 1992, Greece, Leicester to win the Premier League. Everyone needs that dream and hope and belief.'

Welsh fans are certainly in dreamland. They last

Rooney, the brilliant voung talisman at Euro 2004, is no longer a definite starter participated in the finals of a major tournament in the 1958 World Cup in Sweden. Their clash with England is likely to be pivotal for both teams.

So much for the Welsh rests on Gareth Bale, who scored seven goals in the qualifying campaign.

Northern Ireland, at their first major tournament for 30 years, face a huge task in a group which includes Poland, Ukraine and world champions Germany.

Martin O'Neill and the Republic of Ireland. meanwhile, have the toughest task of all, locked in a so-called group of death with Sweden, Belgium and Italy.

Ronaldo set to strike gold

by Frank Malley

WHEN it comes to excelling at the toughest aspect of the game, scoring goals, the cream is usually at the top and, on that basis, it would be folly to back against Cristiano Ronaldo winning the Golden Boot award.

Ronaldo, inset, is the leading scorer in the history of the tournament with 23 goals, including qualifying. He scored five in Portugal's qualifying campaign, including a hat-trick against Armenia, and his rate for Real Madrid is phenomenal.

The Golden Boot rarely goes to a player whose side does not survive deep into the tournament, and Portugal should canter through a group which includes Austria, Hungary and Iceland.

Home advantage should make France a force, which is good news for Antoine Griezmann, the Atletico Madrid forward with knack for scoring crucial goals.

Arsenal's Olivier Giroud will be alongside Griezmann, while German striker Thomas Muller is another contender. He scored nine goals in qualifying and netted 32 times in 48 matches for Bayern last season.

Then there is Harry Kane of England, with his natural goal-scoring ability. But the smart money? It has to be Ronaldo.

Jamie Vardy scores the winner in England's 2-1 Euros warm-up victory over Turkey

-oxes' fairytale

by Simon Peach

HOPE rather expectation is the overriding emotion as England look to make their mark at Euro 2016, yet Leicester's fairytale campaign offers tantalising proof of what can be achieved when a group of talented players buys into a philosophy.

Roy Hodgson is perhaps fortunate to this summer be approaching his third major tournament in charge of the country of his birth after things unravelled so spectacularly at the World Cup two years ago.

Failing to win a match in Brazil did not cost the widely-travelled 68-year-old his job, though, and the Football Association's calculated gamble has seemingly paid off.

Hodgson has gone about replacing much of the old guard with a fresh, young core, while simultaneously securing impressive results and England's passage to Euro 2016 with the only 100 per cent record in qualification.

Overcoming the likes of Estonia and San Marino is, admittedly, hardly a yardstick with which to measure serious progress, but they did their job manfully having overcome their toughest opponent in their opening match.

Danny Welbeck's brace secured that 2-0 win in Switzerland on September 8, 2014 – a time when promoted Leicester were still looking for their first win back in the Premier League.

A lot has changed in the subsequent 20 months, with the Foxes' dramatic fight against the drop followed by an unthinkable rise to the title largely thanks to Jamie Vardy's goals – providing Hodgson with a remarkable touchstone for upsetting the odds.

"I don't want the players to be fearful, I don't want the players to be weighed down by expectations or thoughts of what might happen if they don't succeed," said the England manager. "We've seen this year the example with Leicester City: weeks and weeks turning into months and months of how long can this last? Is it all going to crack up?

"Each time what they've done is work hard, try hard and tried to make certain going into each game they're capable of winning it. That's all we can do as well.

"Nobody expected Denmark to win it in '92; nobody expected Greece to win the Euros(in 2004; no one expected Leicester to win the league.

Odds of 5,000-1 underlined just how unlikely the triumph masterminded by Claudio Ranieri was, with Leicester's story acting as perhaps that little extra slither of belief required for the national team.

Questions still linger over defensive strength, but there is at least some hope after the disastrous 2014 World Cup.

Whether they have enough to end 50 years of hurt remains to be seen, but the Three Lions only need to look to the Foxes for inspiration of upsetting the

Star player - Harry Kane

Wayne Rooney may be England's all-time leading goalscorer, but his performance levels have dipped this season while Kane has continued to impress for Tottenham. He scored 21 League goals last season and now has the chance to prove he is one of the leading marksmen in Europe.

Coach - Roy Hodgson

The well-travelled 68-year-old was perhaps fortunate to stay after England's early exit at the 2014 World Cup, but has been given the chance to rebuild the squad. Another failure would almost certainly cost him his job.

Kane and Alli - a match made in heaven POSSIBLE ENGLAND LINE-UP

by Tom Allnutt

THE last time England played at the European Championship, Harry Kane had just finished a loan spell at Millwall and Dele Alli was completing his GCSEs.

Both did fairly well. Kane scored nine goals and was named the club's Young Player of the Season, while Alli left school with nine A to C grades, including As in Sport and Drama.

As Kane cleared out his locker at Millwall's training ground in Bromley and Alli signed off his final examination paper, it is hard to conceive either imagined that four years on they would be two of the most prized assets in the Premier League and Roy Hodgson's starting line-up

In fact, their breakthroughs were still some way off when Andrea Pirlo was passing and penalty-chipping England out of the quarter-finals at Euro 2012.

Kane spent the following season on loan at Norwich and then Leicester, scoring just twice in 21 appearances, while Alli would make his MK Dons debut in November, but was handed only a single league start before the campaign was

England's class of 2016 have proven fast learners and Hodgson now has an embarrassment of attacking

Harry Kane and Dele Alli have combined to devastating effect for Tottenham this season riches. Hodgson can simplify the equation by etching in Kane and Alli, and moulding the rest around them.

Of Kane's 25 league goals for Tottenham this season, seven were assisted by Alli and after the striker's double against Bournemouth in March, Alli to Kane was the pass most likely to create a goal in Europe. Alli was initially deployed in central midfield by Mauricio Pochettino - and that may yet be where his long-term future lies – but it soon became apparent his craft in the final third and well-timed runs into the box were too precious a threat to waste anywhere other than around the opposition's back line. His goals, 11 of them for club and country, and assists, nine for Spurs in the league, are clear to see, but less obvious is the impact the 20-year-old has on Kane and a team's ability to break down a defence.

England, like Tottenham, are prone to stodginess against sides happy to sit back, but Alli is one of those rare midfielders eager to break lines, his runs on the ball down the flanks and off the ball through the middle opening up gaps. Kane, the Premier League

Golden Boot winner, must play up front and down the middle, Alli either just off him in the centre or on the left with the freedom to cut inside. It is not a strategy without risk. But if Kane and Alli are given license to continue the chemistry shown for their club, England could have their most exciting partnership since Alan Shearer and Teddy Sheringham dazzled at Euro 96.

Hodgson appears ready to roll the dice.

"Germany coach Joachim Löw gave x, y and z chances, they had no experience but he believed in their talent and look how they took their chance.' said Hodgson recently.

"We have to believe the same will happen with ours, because there is no reason not to." Kane and Alli can lead the charge.

How Hodgson's 23 measure up

ROY HODGSON has put his faith in the following 23 players to bring the European trophy back to England:

GOALKEEPERS

Joe Hart (Man City, 58 caps, 0 goals): England's established No.1 and an experienced campaigner. Will be asked to lead and organise.

Fraser Forster (Southampton, 6 caps, 0 goals): Returned from 10 months out injured to set a new club record of six straight clean sheets earlier this season. Tom Heaton (Burnley, 1 caps, 0 goals): Named in the Championship team of the season after helping the Clarets win the title.

DEFENCE

Nathaniel Clyne (Liverpool, 12 caps, O goals): Now fully settled into life at Jurgen Klopp's Liverpool, he brings energy to everything he does from right-back

Kyle Walker (Tottenham, 15 caps, O goals): Will be battling Clyne for a starting spot despite featuring in just one of the qualifiers

Danny Rose (Tottenham, 3 caps, O goals): Showings against Germany and Turkey make a compelling case for him to start the tournament at left-back. Gary Cahill (Chelsea, 42 caps, 3 goals): Hodgson will be hoping the centre-half will not be adversely affected by Chelsea's dire season.

Chris Smalling (Man Utd, 24 caps, O goals): His authority and consistency have risen and he is rapidly building his international credentials

Ryan Bertrand (Southampton, 8 caps, O goals): Continues to impress with Saints and earns his spot in what has become a crowded field at left-back. John Stones (Everton, 10 caps, O goals): Question marks over his confidence, yet remains a big part of the future.

MIDFIELD

Dele Alli (Tottenham, 7 caps, 1 goal): The PFA Young Player of the Year and a driving force behind Spurs' title push.

Jordan Henderson (Liverpool, 25 caps, 0 goals): A badly-timed knee injury left the midfielder sweating over his place, but proved his fitness by featuring in both warm-up friendlies

James Milner (Liverpool, 59 caps, 1 goal): Adds an experienced head to the more dynamic talents around him. Eric Dier (Tottenham, 6 caps, 1 goal): A revelatory showing at the base of the midfield in the 3-2 friendly win over Germany. The own goal against Australia looked an aberration.

Adam Lallana (Liverpool, 22 caps, 0 goals): A regular fixture in the Roy Hodgson era, but still awaiting his defining moment for the Three Lions

Ross Barkley (Everton, 22 caps, 2 goals): Has had his best season in terms of goals, but few would argue Barkley's progress has been serene Jack Wilshere (Arsenal, 30 caps, 2 goals): Another season of injury woe for the 24-year-old, but his bad luck ceased in time for him to get back on the pitch before the end of the campaign.

Raheem Sterling (Man City, 22 caps, 2 goals): A concerning inconsistency in his game, but he has pace, tricks and unpredictability in his favour and netted twice in qualifying

FORWARDS Wayne Rooney (Man Utd, 110 caps, 52 goals): Captain. A star in qualifying, but outperformed over the past season by a handful of strikers

Harry Kane (Tottenham, 11 caps, 5 goals): Looks England's most obvious goal threat, underlined by netting minutes into the Turkey win

Jamie Vardy (Leicester, 7 caps, 3 goals): Having netted in three successive international matches, England will look to harness his hunger. Daniel Sturridge (Liverpool, 17 caps, 5 goals): While he may not possess the sharpest all-round game, he is an instinctive > goalscorer. Marcus Rashford (Man Utd, 1 cap, 1 is a fearlessness and verve about Rashford, with goal, left): There his displays on international duty enough to see him head to France.

The Bayarian has spent his entire career at Bayern Munich, and has won most of the top prizes in world football.

At club level he won the Champions League in 2012-13 while, in the white of Germany, he claimed the Golden Boot at the 2010 World Cup, while four years later in Brazil he was part of the team that beat Argentina to claim the biggest prize of all.

By his own admission, Muller does not possess the skills and trickery of other great players, but his unconventional style causes problems for defenders and he has a habit of being in the right place at the right time.

CRISTIANO RONALDO Portugal

Other than convince the footballing world he is better than Lionel Messi, there is little that Ronaldo has not achieved on an individual basis.

The former Sporting Lisbon and Manchester United forward has been named FIFA's world player of the year on three occasions, and his five goals in qualifying made him the leading scorer in European Championship history. He will expect to increase his tally in France, with Portugal having been drawn in a group which also features Iceland, Hungary and Austria.

Ronaldo inspired Portugal to the semi-finals four years ago, and has since become his country's all-time leading goalscorer, a record which he also holds at Real Madrid.

ZLATAN IBRAHIMOVIC Sweden

Ibrahimovic scored 11 goals in qualifying, and averages better than a goal every two games in international football, having scored three in their play-off victory against Denmark.

He should feel at home in France as he is the star player in Ligue 1 and has just helped Paris Saint-Germain claim another title. Fittingly, he scored four goals in the 9-0 rout of Troyes which secured PSG's title with eight games to spare.

The 34-year-old is the leading scorer for both club and country, and his talent is matched only by his self-confidence, with Ibrahimovic having declared that the tournament without him would have been "unthinkable".

GARETH BALE

WalesReal Madrid fans may have had reservations about the full-back turned forward, but Wales supporters have no such doubts after he helped them reach a major finals for the first time in more than 50 years.

Wales have had great players before, but with Ian Rush, Mark Hughes, Neville Southall and Ryan Giggs having never played at a major finals. Bale will sayour it.

He is no stranger to the big stage, though. He netted a stunning winner for Real in the 2014 Copa del Rey final against Barcelona, and also gave his side the lead in extra-time as Real beat Atletico Madrid to win an historic 10th Champions League title.

Group B - England

Back to the future

by Frank Malley

THERE was a time when an England football manager could agonise over his midfield and attacking options going into a major tournament in the certain knowledge that at least he could rely on his central

Not Roy Hodgson. The England boss will take his squad to France for Euro 2016 knowing that there are goals in his side. In Harry Kane and Jamie Vardy and Delle Alli and Wayne Rooney, even if the England captain is pressed into a deeper midfield role as seems likely.

Going forward there is a vigour and a tempo to England's recent performances which have been hugely encouraging.

But always, even in victory, there have been doubts. The signs are that the back door to England's Euro 2016 challenge is too prone to swing open at the most inopportune moments.

Hodgson, eager to accommodate his attacking talents, has opted to take just

Hodgson must rely on his attack to offset a shaky line of defence

three central defenders in the shape of Chris Smalling, Gary Cahill and John Stones, none of whom are specialist left-sided defenders

That would not be a major problem if they were all in fine form and bursting with confidence. They aren't.

Cahill has struggled to hold down a regular place in the Chelsea side this past season. Stones, at 21 an elegant and promising ball player, was left out of the Everton side for most of the second half of the season.

And while Smalling was a fixture for Manchester United his aberration when getting sent off in the FA Cup final, pulling a player down by the legs rugby-style against Crystal Palace, only highlighted the brittle nature of his decisionmaking.

They do not ooze authority or composure. Not when compared with some of the mighty defenders of England past. Ever since Bobby Moore turned leading from the back into an elegant art form England have been blessed with central defenders of courage and stature.

Men such as Terry Butcher, Tony Adams and Des Walker.

Players such as Sol Campbell, a formidable presence in the centre-back position who was the only England player to be named in the FIFA World Cup All-Star team in 2002 in Japan.

There is no point dwelling on the past and Hodgson had no real alternative but to put his faith in Smalling, Cahill and Stones

The tentative nature of their defending, however, does illuminate the gamble Hodgson has accepted by not adding a fourth central defender to his squad. Instead, he preferred to argue that holding midfielder Eric Dier could be pressed into the central defensive role if needed, even though he did not play there for Tottenham last season. That is worrying. Major tournaments can be won by disguising weaknesses and filling in for vulnerable teammates and Brazil have lifted several World Cups while displaying defensive frailties.

But the most prestigious trophies are rarely lifted by a team with weakness at its central core. We can be sure that Russia will have noted how Turkey caused panic and chaotic positioning in England's defence to score in the first of England's three pre-tournament friendlies at the . Etihad stadium.

Quick, technical opponents scythed a way through. England will face plenty of those if they progress deep into the tournament.

Hodgson has instigated a high pressing game and forged a team with the ability to counter-attack with devastating pace. It is bold and brave but it is also the strategy of a manger who really knows the score.

For Hodgson's England, attack is the best form of defence.

Has Broadchurch kiosk got it licked?

THE ability of TV series to help make tourist destinations popular is illustrated well by this ice-cream hut, which is to be auctioned soon and expected to fetch £65,000.

The detached shack in the South West is near a popular beach and was bought, according to the Dorset Echo, by the current owner for £26,000. They have since spent £15,000 doing it up.

Auctioneer Cliver Emson says interest in the kiosk has been whipped up to a large extent by the popularity of TV series Broadchurch, which in recent years has completed much of its filming in the streets of West Bay, where the hut is located.

Broadchurch fans are hoping the crime drama finds a return to form when it makes its next outing early next year and actors Olivia Colman and David Tennant are busy filming the third and final series, reprising their roles of Detectives Miller and Hardy.

Sir Lenny Henry is also set to join the show's cast along with other new characters played by Sarah Parish, Roy Hudd and former Coronation Street star Julie Hesmondalgh. Although the shack has been used as an ice cream kiosk in recent years, the auctioneers reckon it could be used for residential purposes, pending planning permission.

Prince's secret Spanish villa for sale

MUSIC lovers still mourning Prince after his shock death in April will soon find out what made the flamboyant pop legend feel at home.

Set to rival Elvis' Graceland in Memphis, Prince's £4.6m Paisley Park home in Minnesota is going to become a museum, where visitors can have a good poke around the extravagant complex, complete with recording studio, massive wardrobe, studio and dance rehearsal room.

Prince also spent time on the Costa del Sol, where he bought a luxury pad for ex-wife Mayte Garcia as a wedding gift after falling in love with Spain while performing a concert in Marbella in 1990.

The musician decorated the home with his signature style, painting rooms in his favourite colour purple and inscribing a wardrobe of crystal, wood and gold with his trademark symbol. But the couple divorced in 2000 and Garcia sold the property in 2006

His former seven bedroom Adorna Tierra estate is on the market again, with a price tag of 7.5m euros. Set in 1.45 acres, it's been completely renovated since the Purple One's day, but is still pretty opulent with a grand, chandelier-hung entrance hall, sunken bath, outdoor Jacuzzi, air-conditioning throughout and marble floors.

There's a large living room, dining room and breakfast room, all with panoramic windows, along with separate guest house, swimming pool, tennis court and three garages. As you'd expect after having a reclusive owner, it's completely walled and private with top-notch security systems.

Newton house with an attractive force ir Isaac Newton's story reads like a rags-to-riches tale of a lonely fatherless boy from a sheep farm who went on to become a scientific genius and one of the greatest men of his age.

His work on defining and explaining gravitation as well as the three laws of motion are some of the most influential scientific theories every developed. But the well-known boffin was born prematurely in 1643 and not expected to survive infancy. Despite this, he'd become a professor of maths at Cambridge University by the age of 26.

When Cambridge University closed because of the plague, Newton went back home to Lincolnshire in 1666 and performed many experiments, famously observing an apple fall from a tree in his garden.

Woolsthorpe Manor in Colsterworth is now a National Trust property where scores of tourists and would-be scientists pay homage to his fruit trees. It's just down the road from this detached stone manor house with an interesting connection to the scientific genius. Not only is the staircase said to have come from his house, but it's also thought that when the property served as the local court house, Newton was fined there as a young boy for letting his sheep roam unattended. James Abbott of Savills, says: "It is a lovely house with a versatile layout, which is positioned within very private gardens in the centre of the village."

On the market for £695,000, the property is set over three floors, within large grounds. It's stuffed with character, such as the stone inglenook fireplace in the sitting room and exposed beams and stone mullion windows in the four bedrooms. A large outbuilding houses a garage and workshop.

You'd have to be Batty to buy this

AS the broom-wielding, humourless battle-axe in Last Of The Summer Wine, Nora Batty – with her curlers and saggy stockings – became a TV comedy icon.

Nora's pursuit by Compo provided some wacky storylines in the beloved BBC sitcom, including her scruffy suitor attempting to have his photograph taken in her bedroom and devising a complicated plan to establish her shoe size.

The tale of three eccentric old duffers ambling around a small Yorkshire town ran for 31 series and was finally put out to pasture in 2010. Actress Kathy Staff starred as Nora in the very first show in January 1973 and when Compo (Bill Owen) died in 1999, Staff announced plans to leave. She was persuaded to stay and, apart from a brief spell in the revived ITV soap Crossroads, continued to play the character until shortly before her death aged 80 in 2008.

If you're a Nora fan there's a veritable shrine to her in Last Of

The Summer Wine country, Holmfirth, which is currently rented out for £500 per week.

The two-bedroom house, which can sleep six, appeared in dozens of episodes of the world's longest-running sitcom, and has been up for sale at £169,950 although the owner is now open to offers.

It's got a lounge, dining kitchen and garden overlooking the river and the town. Signed photographs of Nora adorn the walls of one bedroom, there's a life-size cut-out of Compo in the bathroom and props used in the filming are dotted around the

Cottage with royal connections

VIEWERS of Sunday tea-time TV don't generally like surprises and those who tuned into the much-loved series Heartbeat got a gentle introduction to spin-off The Royal.

Not only did it keep the cop drama's Yorkshire setting and 1960s flavour but familiar Heartbeat characters featured in the first series including Gina Ward and PC Alf Ventress as well as Claude Greengrass, back from the Tropics with a mysterious disease which gave actor Bill Maynard the chance to lie in bed and order everyone around.

At the time, the show's directors reckoned viewers would get comfort from the odd appearance of people they knew. Other well-known faces joined the cosy cast, with Wendy Craig as matron and Ian Carmichael as hospital secretary T.J. Middleditch, in plots centred around medical emergencies and the resulting moral dilemmas.

The Royal, which ran from 2003 to 2011, was already known to Heartbeat fans as the cottage hospital in nearby Elsinby, a fictional rural seaside town, portrayed as being close to Heartbeat's home-town of Aidensfield. But it was actually filmed at the Red Court building on Scarborough's Esplanade – used as the hospital's exterior and still regularly visited by the shows' fans.

Built in 1905, it was a hotel at one time but later converted into apartments.

A three-bedroom mews cottage in the building is now up for sale at £235,000. As the building's original coach house, its access is through a covered side entrance. It's set over two floors with lounge, breakfast kitchen and conservatory with communal gardens and off-road parking.

Star player - Gareth Bale

The world's most expensive player was a force of nature in the Euro 2016 qualifiers as he dragged Wales towards France with his attacking brilliance and his infectious work-rate. Seven goals and two assists in qualifying make the Real Madrid man simply irreplaceable.

Coach - Chris Coleman

The former Fulham and Real Sociedad manager took some time to convince the critics he was the man for the job. But Coleman has developed a successful tactical strategy and fostered a terrific team spirit.

AARON RAMSEY has always kept the faith.

In choosing football over other sports, to believing that Arsenal was a better bet than Manchester United, Ramsey had to make tough decisions at an early age.

an early age.
Then came personal heartache and loss. The shattering double fracture when still a teenager and the tragic death of his Wales manager Gary Speed, the man who had made him the youngest captain of his country at the age of 20 years and 90 days.

It was an honour that Ramsey was to lose when Speed's successor, Chris Coleman, wanted the more experienced Ashley Williams to wear the armband, and for the midfielder to focus on his game.

Ramsey did so as he won over the snipers who had openly questioned what Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger saw in the young Welshman.

He scored the winner in the 2014 FA Cup final victory over Hull – Arsenal's first major trophy for nine years – and his box-to-box energy, passing ability, and eye for goal made him impossible for Wenger to omit and drew admiring glances from Barcelona.

All the time Ramsey was adamant that Wales would end

Midfielder Aaron Ramsey

58 years of hurt by qualifying for Euro 2016.

"I always believed we could get ourselves into a position like that from when Gary Speed took over and you could see everything being put in place," Ramsey said last year.

"We started off really well under him and what happened knocked us for a while.

"It wasn't an easy thing to overcome, but I never thought we would fail under Chris."

After coming through Cardiff City's academy, he then turned down Manchester United's approach and joined Arsenal because of Wenger's track record of turning youngsters into world-class players.

A split second at Stoke, though, would soon turn the Welshman's dream move into a nightmare.

A tackle by Stoke defender Ryan Shawcross in February 2010 broke the tibia and fibula in Ramsey's right leg.

Ramsey would not play again for Arsenal for over a year, as a career which had only known an upwards trajectory was forced to take in loan spells at Nottingham Forest and Cardiff.

Speed offered Ramsey encouragement with the Wales captaincy, but eight months later the manager's sudden death left a nation grieving.

Coleman felt the pressure was too great, and Ramsey needed to take a step back to have a greater impact. It was to prove a masterstroke.

While Gareth Bale played the lead role in guiding Wales to France, Ramsey has blossomed in the central attacking midfield role.

"We have shown we have a team capable of beating anyone," said Ramsey. "One of my targets for this season was to help Wales to qualify and to show what I'm capable of doing on the big stage."

Wales' own captain marvel, Swansea's Ashley Williams

Ash burns bright

by Phil Blanche

WALES captain Ashley Williams is the outsider who came in from the cold.

The teenage Williams was shown the door at West Brom and had to fight his way to the top via non-league football and plenty of unglamorous jobs outside the game.

On a CV that includes spells at Hednesford and Stockport, there is also time served as a petrol station attendant, a waiter and a stall worker at a theme park.

Even when Wolverhamptonborn Williams eventually wore the red of Wales, courtesy of a Welsh grandfather, he might have been forgiven for feeling like a foreigner.

Chris Coleman chose the man with the broad Midlands accent to replace Aaron Ramsey as captain in October 2012, as Wales struggled to cope with the transition following the tragic death of previous manager Gary Speed.

But Williams, who had joined Swansea from Stockport in 2008, was caught in the

Wales skipper reaches top from unlikely beginnings

crossfire as the inter-club rivalry in Welsh football reared its head. "Ashley Williams, he's not even Welsh," sang a section of Cardiff fans keen to show support for their former favourite Ramsey.

Nearly four years on, that dissent has disappeared and Williams is now the undisputed leader of a side which ended 58 years of hurt by qualifying for Euro 2016. He was the rock in a defence which conceded only four times in 10 qualifiers.

So no-one in Wales will be worrying where he was born and brought up when Coleman's side play England in Lens, least of all Williams.

"I wasn't born here, I grew up watching England in football, rugby, whatever," Williams has said.

"I have Welsh blood, but I'm not stupid enough to go around saying I'm Welsh when I was born where I was born – but I know what I feel. I know people will have their opinions about it, but I feel Welsh, and hopefully people can see I've given my all for the country.

"I know what it means because I feel it."

Williams was making his reputation at Stockport when a slice of luck set him on the path to an international career.

Brian Flynn, then Wales' youth chief, had travelled to Stockport to watch Wayne Hennessey during the goalkeeper's loan spell from Wolves. Flynn was impressed with the young central defender with the Welsh-sounding surname, and enquiries were made as to whether Williams qualified for Wales.

When the Football Association of Wales were told the answer was yes, Williams was duly named in John Toshack's next squad and made his debut against Luxembourg in March 2008.

The very next day Williams strengthened his ties to Wales by signing for Swansea, first on loan and then in a permanent £400,000 deal.

Williams was soon celebrating promotion from League One and, three years later, was a mainstay of the Swansea side which won promotion to the Premier League through the play-offs. In the intervening five seasons he has developed into one of the most consistent defenders in the top flight and was key in Swansea winning the Capital One Cup in 2013 and qualifying for Europe.

Williams' leadership skills were spotted by Swansea long before Coleman decided to replace the popular Ramsey, and his injury-free record is remarkable. The 31-year-old has now made more than 350 appearances for Swansea and has become indispensable for club and country.

"It took so long to qualify but it isn't job done – it's the start of something else now," said Williams. "We want this to be a springboard."

The roller-coaster ride for the former theme park worker may not be about to stop in France.

Star player – Kyle Lafferty

The Norwich striker may have found first-team football hard to come by at club level in recent times, prompting a loan move to Birmingham in March, but the 28-year-old has been in top form for his country. Lafferty was instrumental as Northern Ireland topped their qualifying group, netting seven goals.

Coach - Michael O'Neill

The 46-year-old endured a difficult start to his Northern Ireland career following his appointment in December 2011, but the former Shamrock Rovers boss has since turned things around, building a strong and balanced team, while steering his country to 30th in the world rankings.

FOUR years ago, while others on the continent were preparing for Euro 2012, a weakened Northern Ireland team shipped six goals for the first time in 51 years in a June friendly with Holland.

The defeat against the World Cup finalists from two years earlier, in Michael O'Neill's second game in charge, was their sixth successive loss. There would be just one more victory in the 16 games that came before the Euro 2016 qualifying campaign.

An expanded 24-team finals gave the Northern Irish some hope of a first major international tournament appearance in 30 years, as did a favourable draw that saw them avoid the continent's traditional heavyweights, yet the magnitude of their achievement in topping the group can only be appreciated by looking at what immediately preceded it.

There was an indication that something special was in store back in September 2014 when the Northern Irish, one down in Budapest with nine minutes to go, fought back against Hungary in their opening qualifier to claim their first away triumph in four years.

It was Kyle Lafferty that got the winner that night and O'Neill's call for him to "step up" was certainly heard.

Don't write the Irish

Defender Gareth McAuley

Twelve months earlier, after a dismissal against Portugal 13 minutes after he came on, the manager hit Lafferty with some home truths - cut out the clown act and grow up; the penny dropped. The refocused lynchpin would end qualifying with seven goals and the late equaliser against Hungary in Belfast last September, which came after Chris Baird had been dismissed, brought Northern Ireland to the brink of qualification.

Lafferty was suspended by the time it was sealed on a historic night at Windsor Park as they beat Greece 3-1.

That victory would come in the midst of a 10-match unbeaten run, with a home win over Slovenia in March setting a new national record that surpassed the streak of Billy Bingham's side when they made the World Cup in 1986.

It may have been 30 years since that last finals appearance, but O'Neill has helped foster belief inside his ranks. Their schedule in France is kind, even if the draw is not. Most of O'Neill's squad and indeed starting XI for the Poland fixture picks itself, though the team he selects against in Nice will alter depending on his formation.

The preferred 4-3-3 system used in qualifying has been tweaked to an experimental 5-3-2 in recent fixtures to allow Jonny Evans, Gareth McAuley and Craig Cathcart all to start in familiar centre-back berths in the team's area of strength.

That trio, along with Davis, Roy Carroll and Aaron Hughes. have plenty of experience at international level, and the dark times they endured have made the past few years all the more sweeter

They will be in France and the Dutch, three-time World Cup finalists, will not. It has been some turnaround.

I'm pretty sure every other manager would have lost the plot with me

Frontman's

by Liam Blackburn

NORTHERN IRELAND were set on the road to France with a 2-1 victory over Hungary in Budapest in September 2014, but the seeds were sown 12 months earlier, following a defeat to Portugal in Belfast.

On that night, striker Kyle Lafferty was sent off 13 minutes after coming on for a lunge on full-back Joao Pereira, as Michael O'Neill's nine men fell to a 4-2 defeat in a World Cup qualifier.

It came just months after Palermo had let him go to Norwich despite a prolific season because, according to comments made in the Italian press by their president, he was 'an out-of-control womaniser".

Following his dismissal against Portugal, O'Neill laid out some uncomfortable home truths for Lafferty. The joker had to go; his country needed a

"He sat me down the day after I was sent off against Portugal," Lafferty explained.

"It's difficult when you think you've got a good relationship with someone and a guy you respect is saying things that hurt you. But when I went away and had a think about it, I knew he was right.

"I had to grow up. I can't always be the player who loves a joke off the pitch, but performs one in every three games. It was difficult and I'm pretty sure every other manager would have lost the plot with me. He made me wake up.'

And wake up he did. The late winner in Budapest was the first of seven goals in qualification and a last-gasp equaliser against Hungary in the reverse fixture last September, took the Green and White Army to the brink of a first major international tournament in 30 years.

"Had it not been for the sending-off against Portugal I don't know if I would be in this position now, helping the team," Lafferty adds.

The 28-year-old, who spent the end of the season on loan at Birmingham, would be suspended for that historic Belfast night against Greece, so the baton was picked up by Steven Davis, the under-rated midfield skipper who could be the true key to Northern Ireland's fortunes across the Channel.

The 31-year-old made his international bow 11 years ago and in 2006 he was handed the armband to become his country's youngest-ever captain.

No stranger to big European occasions having started in the 2008 UEFA Cup final for Rangers, it was his brace against Greece last October that sealed Northern Ireland's first place at a European Championship finals

"Steven's performance was out of this world; he is a magnificent captain," O'Neill said after the contest.

"Anyone in the squad will validate that opinion. That gives you an indication of the type of player he is and the person he is."

For Lafferty, Davis, and the likes of fellow veterans Roy Carroll, Aaron Hughes and Gareth McAuley, recent success is all the sweeter given the dark days of previous years.

"It has been difficult at times playing for Northern Ireland and trying to get consistency and results," Davis admitted.

'You have to dig deep sometimes, but qualifying makes it all worthwhile. Now we can look forward to France which is an amazing feeling.

Ahead of pre-tournament friendlies with Belarus and Slovakia, Northern Ireland were unbeaten in 10 games record-breaking run which has seen them eclipse the feat of Billy Bingham's team when they reached the World Cup finals in 1986.

O'Neill has enhanced belief in the past two years and Group C should hold no fear for his side, even if world champions Germany are one of their opponents alongside Poland and Ukraine.

Germany

The world champions will be one of the teams to beat and, in spite of a few stutters during qualifying, there is little to suggest otherwise. Germany are unlikely to be fazed by their group draw, with Poland their biggest threat.

Poland

Ukraine

The war in Ukraine has proved once again there is more to life than football, but success at Euro 2016 - after beating Slovenia in a play-off - would at least bring some much-needed cheer to the country.

Group E - Republic

Mellower, still fire in

ROY KEANE divides opinion in Ireland.

There are those who will never forgive him for the Saipan meltdown which saw him return home from the 2002 World Cup finals without kicking a ball, those who believe he may have had a point, but might have dealt with the situation in more conciliatory fashion, and others who all but worship the ground he rampages across in his own inimitable style.

Whatever else Keane is, he is definitely box office material, a factor not lost on former Republic of Ireland team-mate Niall Ouinn when he offered him the chance to launch his managerial career at Sunderland in August 2006.

For better or for worse, the 44-year-old Corkman is never far from the headlines with his very presence, let alone his forthright views and dry wit. newsworthy long after his glittering on-field career drew to a close

It will be no different this summer as Keane in his role as Ireland's assistant manager heads for the Euro 2016 finals.

The former Manchester United captain, who was capped 67 times by his country, has become accustomed to, if not comfortable with, the circus which accompanies his every move, and despite retaining ambition to return to club football one day, is clearly enjoying his spell working under Martin O'Neill.

Perhaps more significantly, he appears to be rather good at it too.

Ever since Keane launched his coaching career, there has been a perception that he would not be able to cope with players who were unable to do what he was able to do on a football pitch, but that transition has rarely looked problematical for him.

Roy Keane has combined well with boss Martin O'Neill

He freely admits he made mistakes in the transfer market after taking Sunderland up into the Premier League at the first attempt and being presented with a more than competitive war-chest by Quinn's Drumaville consortium, and his tolerance - or more accurately, lack of it – of boardroom involvement of what he considered to be his realm. ultimately led to his departure from the Stadium of Light.

As a result, eyebrows were inexplicably raised when he accepted O'Neill's offer to work as his assistant, a role he for a time combined with a similar position at Aston Villa under then manager Paul Lambert, but it is a partnership which has since flourished and blossomed.

O'Neill has accepted from the start that there could come a time when his No.2 was offered the chance to return to club management, but he firmly believes whatever happens in the future, Keane has benefitted from his time back in the Ireland fold.

He said: "I think this has been very, very good for him.

Star player - Robbie Keane

Keane is no longer a guaranteed starter for Ireland, but his importance on and off the pitch cannot be over-estimated. The 35-year-old LA Galaxy frontman had scored 67 goals in 143 senior appearances for his country at the start of 2016 and while his glittering career is drawing to a close, he remains an inspirational figure.

Coach - Martin O'Neill

O'Neill was the popular choice to succeed Giovanni Trapattoni and his decision to employ Roy Keane as his No.2 captured the imagination. The combination has to date paid dividends with O'Neill's attention to detail and motivational powers having blended well with Keane's winning mentality.

Goalkeepers: Darren Randolph (West Ham), Shay Given (Stoke), Keiren Westwood (Sheffield Wednesday).

Defenders: Cyrus Christie (Derby), Seamus Coleman (Everton), Ciaran Clark (Aston Villa), Richard Keogh (Derby), Shane Duffy (Blackburn), John O'Shea (Sunderland), Stephen Ward (Burnley).

Midfielders: James McClean (West Bromb, Glenn Whelan (Stoke), James McCarthy (Everton), Jeff Hendrick (Derby), Stephen Quinn (Reading), Wes Hoolahan (Norwich), David Meyler (Hull City), Robbie Brady (Norwich), Aiden McGeady (Everton).

of Ireland

but Keane his belly

Robbie Keane may be nearing the end of his career, but he is still Ireland's talisman

Will he want to manage on his own again? Absolutely, and if an opportunity comes up, a really good opportunity, then I would wish him all the best."

As intense a character as he can be, Keane appears at ease on the training pitch, where players who grew up marvelling at his contribution for both club and country relish the opportunity to work under

But perhaps more significantly, he obviously enjoys working with and trying to improve them under the careful gaze of a manager for whom he has immense respect.

The snarling countenance and popping veins of his playing days may have gone to be replaced by a disarming jocularity which has allowed him to forge a relaxed relationship with the squad, although he remains relentlessly focussed on the job at hand.

Asked about skipper Robbie Keane's availability for the key qualifier against Germany in October after he had delayed his arrival in Dublin to attend the birth of his second son in Los Angeles, a bemused Keane replied: "Yes, why wouldn't he be? He didn't have the baby. Unless he's breast-feeding, he should be all right.

However, it would be a mistake to assume the winning mentality which has fuelled Keane ever since he pulled on his first pair of football boots has waned as he has mellowed.

The draw for the finals has pitched the Republic into a tough group, but that is not something which will faze their assistant manager. Keane said: "We won't be short on hunger and desire and determination, and with the players and the manager we have, hopefully we'll give every play a good game.

Belgium

Belgium have climbed to the top of FIFA's rankings courtesy of a golden generation of players feted throughout Europe and are serious contenders to win their first major tournament at Euro 2016.

For a small nation, the talent at head coach Marc Wilmots' disposal is staggering and Belgium will head across the border to France as the best bet to challenge world champions Germany, the hosts and Spain for the Henri Delaunay Trophy.

Italy are a much-altered beast since they reached the final at Euro 2012 but the changes have not necessarily been for the

The swashbuckling displays of the best days of the Cesare Prandelli era have been replaced by a pragmatic approach that saw Italy squeeze their way past all of their qualifying opponents, barring Croatia, who held them to a pair of draws.

Italy lack the star quality of the past and are now rated as just outsiders

Sweden

Euro 2016 could well be Zlatan Ibrahimovic's last major international tournament so do not expect the talismanic striker to bow out quietly.

Always outspoken, often unplayable, the 34-year-old is now in the twilight of his career, but he remains the star of this Swedish outfit.

He dragged his country through their qualifying campaign almost single-handedly, scoring 11 of their 19 goals and he has the ideal chance to live up to his billing in French fancy fun chez nous

by Lenny Miller

FRANCE know better than most the importance of home advantage, and they have got the players to replicate the achievements of the class of '98 in front of their own fans

That World Cup-winning squad is arguably the best group of players any country has ever assembled at one tournament. Marcel Desailly, Laurent Blanc, Bixente Lizarazu, Lillian Thuram, Emmanuel Petit, Patrick Vieira, Youri Djorkaeff, Robert Pires, Zinedine Zidane, Thierry Henry and David Trezeguet. That generation were all world-class and are now legends.

Their skipper, Didier Deschamps, is now the coach, and will know his current crop cannot live up to that impossibly high standard, but that's not to say the 3-1 favourites are not good enough to win Euro 2016.

They have a formidable spine, with Hugo Lloris one of the world's best goalkeepers, and Raphael Varane, 23, the most highly-rated young defender on the planet. Midfielder Paul Pogba, also 23, is destined for great things, while their options up front, even without Karim Benzema, are mind-boggling.

Deschamps isn't lacking for pace in that department, with Anthony Martial, Kingsley Coman and Atletico Madrid's prolific Antoine Griezmann in his ranks Olivier Giroud and Andre-Pierre Gignac can play the target man role if needed. Sevilla's Kevin Gameiro didn't even make the squad.

World champions Germany

(10-3) and European Championship holders Spain (11-2) represent France's biggest threat, but are not at the peak of their powers, as they were when winning those titles.

Germany, with a few players retired and a couple of injuries, are a team in transition. They were not convincing in qualifying, losing to Poland and Ireland, and only managed clean sheets against minnows Gibraltar (twice) and Georgia (once).

their squad looks formidable. Any manager who can afford to leave out Santi Cazorla, Juan Mata and Diego Costa from their 23-man squad must be blessed, and Vicente del Bosque certainly is just that.

Aritz Aduriz is someone to keep an eye on. The Athletic Bilbao veteran scored 36 goals in all competitions in 2015-16, and is certainly worth a few pennies to be the tournament's top goalscorer at 30-1. Game time could be an issue, but Fernando Torres has shown in the past you don't have to be a regular starter to achieve that accolade.

IPL LASER TREATMENT

Perfect time of year to have IPL Treatment...

IPL – LASER Treatment, IPL, short for intense pulsed light, is a popular treatment that is best known for its ability to treat vascular conditions like broken capillalaries (spider veins) and the brown spots or 'age spots' caused by sun damage. IPL also stimulates the production of collagen which plumps up the skin and gives you a fresher look, and refines or tightens large pores. IPL treatments can also be effective at hair removal.

The ideal candidate for IPL is someone with light skin who has sun damage, broken capillaries, and some laxity or lack of firmness and wants to treat all three conditions at the same time. IPL is sometimes referred to as photo facial

LVL Length Volume Lashes Normally £40 - Offer £30

Available from 6th June - offer limited period only

LVL is a low maintenance and long lasting treatment. Proven great results with instant visable difference that will last up to 6 weeks. This is a great solution for people who prefer a natural alternative and still love "the big lash" look. LVL uses an innovative technique to aently lift and straighten the lashes enhancing volume and thickness. LVL uses silicon shields, rather than rods, the shields are far more comfortable for the client and the lashes. Another difference is that LVL gel formulation straightens the lash rather than curls it. The result? Stunning length, volume and lift on natural eyelashes

Talent back on show in square

LUTON town centre will come alive with dancing and singing on Saturday when St George's Square will host free family friendly performances between noon and 4pm.

'Luton Live' has been planned by Luton Business Improvement District (BID) to encourage more visitors into the town centre and to showcase and celebrate the diverse creative arts scene in Luton.

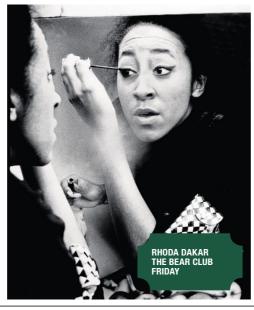

This is part of a whole series of street entertainment days. Luton Live will take to the town centre on the second Saturday of every month from March to October.

Appearing this month is the Dunstable based Rock Chorus, who will be belting out pop, rock and soul tunes -and there will be a plethora of other things to take part in.

LUTON LIVE ST GEORGE'S SQUARE SATURDAY

Up close with 2 Tone star Rhoda

A STAR name of the 2 Tone ska genre will visit Luton for a rare and intimate acoustic set at The Hat Factory.

Rhoda Dakar joined all-female group The Bodysnatchers in 1979 after The Pogues frontman Shane McGowan introduced her to bassist Nicky Summers.

After only their second gig the band signed to legendary UK record label 2 Tone. For their third gig they were invited to perform at Blondie star Debbie Harry's birthday party - quite the start!

Their first single was a double A-side

'Let's Do Rocksteady' backed with 'Ruder Than You'. It reached number 22 in the UK Singles Chart, and the band were invited to appear on Top of the Pops, to tour with The Selecter and to record a session for BBC Radio 1 DJ John Peel.

Their second single 'Easy Life' coupled with their version of Bob Andy's 'Too Experienced' reached number 50. Several members of The Bodysnatchers then left to form The Belle Stars.

But Dakar forged her own path and collaborated with The Specials. Her duet with Terry Hall, 'I Can't Stand It', appeared on the album, 'More Specials'.

After The Specials announced their break up in 1981, Jerry Dammers formed a new band called The Special AKA, along with Dakar and John Bradbury.

Their first single release, 'The Boiler' charted in the top 40 in 1982, despite being banned from some radio stations due to its harrowing subject.

Rhoda performed on The Special AKA album 'In the Studio', which featured the top 10 hit single 'Free Nelson Mandela'. Her first solo album, 'Cleaning In Another Woman's Kitchen', was released in November 2007 on Moon Ska World.

It featured new acoustic versions of songs from her Bodysnatchers days. Then in 2009 she was guest vocalist on the song 'On The Town' on the Madness album 'The Liberty of Norton Folgate'. Lately Rhoda has put out her 'Rhoda Sings The Bodysnatchers' album to great critical acclaim. It was released after years of being asked to do so, and to celebrate

The Bodysnatchers' 35th anniversary. Rhoda assembled an all-star cast to in effect record The Bodysnatchers' debut album - most songs had only ever been heard live, on ultra rare bootleg live cassettes or on their two John Peel sessions. Doors open for the intimate show at 7pm, with the music starting at 8:30pm.

Tickets, which cost £10 (plus a £1 booking fee), can be purchased online by visiting the-bear.club

THE BOROUGH OF LUTON (KIMPTON ROAD) (EXPERIMENTAL) ORDER 2016

NOTICE is hereby given that on Friday 27th May 2016 Luton Borough Council, the highway authority for the said Borough, made the above Order under the relevant provisions of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 (as amended). The Order will come into force on Monday 20th June 2016 and will be in force for an experimental period of up to 18 months.

The effect of the Order will be to introduce on an experimental basis on Kimpton Road an exemption for taxis to stand on the south side (adjacent to Hamptons Hotel) from a point approximately 10 metres east of the Hotel access road to a point 10 metres west of the traffic island. A distance of approximately 42 metres.

The Council will consider in due course whether the Order should be made permanent. If you wish to object to the making of a permanent Order you should send the grounds of your objection in writing to the undersigned or email HighwayTRO@luton.gov.uk by Friday 28th November 2016 (quoting reference HW/P1932) or, if the Order is subsequently varied by another Order made under section 9 or modified pursuant to section 10(2) of the 1984 Act, within six months from the coming into operation of that variation or modification (whichever is the latest).

Any person wishing to question the validity of the Order or any provision contained in it on the grounds that they are not within the powers contained in the above Act or any requirement of that Act or any regulation made under it has not been complied with in relation to the Order, may, within six weeks of the date on which the Order was made, apply to the High Court for this purpose

The 3008 style offensive

BY CHRIS RUSSON

SHARP styling has become a trait of Peugeot's rejuvenated line up and the latest model to get the trendy treatment is the all new 3008 SUV.

Dubbed the most sophisticated Peugeot to date, the new 3008 will be on the road early next

It continues the style offensive with much more aggressive body lines all round and a stand-out radiator grille.

But it is on the inside where the new 3008 makes a mark by becoming the first model to feature Peugeot's new high tech i-Cockpit which is centred on two high definition displays.

A bank of touch sensitive switches sits across the central control panel and the cabin is decked out with ambient lighting at night and can be characterised even further with a fragrance diffuser which dispenses three different aromas.

A new-look steering wheel, flattened top and bottom and smaller than normal, is a dominant feature - but it feels good to the touch and so does the ergonomically shaped gear lever on models fitted with automatic trans-

The new 3008 is more than three inches longer than the current model and offers more space inside. Boot capacity has also been increased

There is also a fold-flat seating set up and the car can carry narrow objects - such as skis - up to three metres in length.

Other practical features include a power operated tailgate, a lower rear sill to help loading and a moveable boot floor panel which can also be used to slide in large or heavy objects.

Peugeot will be using its new

BlueHDi diesel engines with emissions as low as 100 g/km for the diesels.

High tech systems include Apple, Android and MirrorLink smartphone connectivity while the navigation programme uses TomTom Traffic services which not only relay warnings about snarl ups and the like but can also show the price of fuel at nearby filling stations or the availability of parking spaces.
As with the current 3008 the new model is fitted with Peugeot's Grip Control system which uses electronics to maximise traction over poor surfaces.

And modifications have been made to help it tackle steeper inclines and at speeds slower than before – lower than walking pace if required to give drivers added confidence in nasty conditions

Prices and further specifications are expected to be announced in the autumn

COVERCAR

Ibiza SE 1.0 Eco TSI Take a look inside.

BY IAN DONALDSON

SOMETIMES less is more smaller is better and cheaper beats dearer.

Take the crisply styled SEAT hatchback driven here; you can buy an Ibiza with a much bigger and more powerful engine that will add thousands to the bill.

And yes, you'll go either a lot faster (with petrol doing the work) or use less fuel, with diesel in the tank, but this 1.0litre Eco car does so well with so little I'd not look elsewhere in the range.

Not that many years ago the prospect of a family-sized hatch with a mere 1.0-litre engine would look like a recipe for frustration as queues formed behind on every hill.

How times change; you can have the latest Ibiza with three versions of a three-cylinder 999cc petrol engine with three power outputs and all of them will make a decent stab at providing stress free motoring.

And it really doesn't feel at all feeble when pressed. At no time did it feel out of its depths, from winding country lanes to a motorway cruise.

The Ibiza comes in three shapes, with a three-door SC hatch saving £450 on the price of the five-door and the ST estate adding £700 to the bill. Engines range from the 1.0-litre, through 1.2 and 1.4-litre petrol and 1.4 diesels to the range topping I.8-litre petrol Cupra at more than £18,000.

Less is more applies to the way the smallest engined Ibiza drives too, with the lighter engine lending a delightful easy going feel to the steering. A light clutch and precise gearchange add to the

More is better when it comes to equipment levels, you might imagine. So it proves with the SE model on test, with standard kit including alloy wheels, front fog lights with a cornering func-tion at low speed, manual air conditioning, remote central locking, electrically adjustable and heated door mirrors, DAB radio, Bluetooth and audio and phone controls on the (leather wrapped) steering wheel.

The car came with £580 worth of satellite navigation, as clear and easily read on its big screen as systems in much dearer cars. You wouldn't call the Ibiza's cabin plush (that's left for dearer badges in the VW Group) but it all fits together well and - as ever - is set out to make the chore of the daily drive just that little bit less of a hassle

Renault goes large with new Grand Scenic

RENAULT is making a comeback to the seven seat MPV market with a new version of the Grand Scenic. The car - which will also be available is a five seater - is almost 10 inches longer than the regular Scenic and has almost double the boot space. All models will sit on 20-inch wheels giving the fourth generation of the Grand Scenic addded road presence while the interior will feature plenty of technology, including a head up display for the driver. It will be powered by a range of diesel and petrol engines with power outputs ranging from 110 to 160ps and Renault will also be making the lower powered diesel models available with a quasi-hybrid powertrain which uses an electric motor to reduce workload on the engine and assist with fuel economy. The cockpit is centred on Renault's R-Link 2 connectivity system which uses an 8.7-inch tablet style multimedia display.

Luggage capacity on the five door Grand Scenic has been increased to 765 litres and, as with previous versions of the Scenic, there are additional storage compartments throughout the cabin including underfloor compartments. The rear seats can slide forward to create extra space without reducing the number of passengers while the seats themselves have a fold flat function which can now be operated from the touchscreen. Emergency braking and pedestrian detection systems will be fitted to all models while other safety aids include a driver fatigue monitor, a lane keeping function and automatic cruise control. The new Grand Scenic - a competitor for the likes of the Ford Grand C-MAX and Citroen's C4 Grand Picasso - is due for release later in the year and Renault says it will be announcing prices closer to the launch date.

New top range Touareg from VW

THE latest Volkswagen Touareg SUV is to gain some THE latest Volkswagen Touareg SUV is to gain some extra luxury with the arrival of the new range-topping trim level - R-Line Plus. The 4x4 Touareg R-Line Plus uses the well-equipped R-Line as a starting point, and builds in additions inside and out. Externally, the five-seat SUV's alloy wheels are upgraded from 20 inches to 21-inch "Mallory" design. The R-Line Plus models also come equipped with Volkswagen's Area View technology as standard. This utilises front, rear and side wide-angle cameras mounted within the door mirrors to provide a 360-degree bird's-eye exterior view of the SUV that is displayed on the Touareg's dashboard display screen. Changes have also been made inside. The centre console, dash and air vent surrounds are finished in Piano Black, and the cabin surrounds are finished in Piano Black, and the cabin features luxurious leather upholstery. The front seats are now 14-way electronically adjustable and the front nead restraints include four-way adjustment. The extra equipment on the top-ranger has a value of £3,255 if specified separately, but the premium over the Touareg R-Line is a £1,160, underlining the car's great value. That figure applies whether the customer chooses the 204bhp 3.0-litre V6 TDI engine or the 262bhp 3.0-litre V6 TDI. Both offer a combined figure of 42.8 mpg, while CO2 emissions for the 204bhn engine are 1737/hrm from £48.095. while CO2 emissions for the 204bhp engine are 173g/km from £48,095.

VW COMMERCIALS IN GLOBAL SALES SURGE

By: Ian Johnson

VOLKSWAGEN commercial vehicle activities are on a worldwide roll with a global delivery rise of 4.7 per cent. In the first four months of the year Volkswagen Commercial Vehicles delivered 154,600 vehicles to customers worldwide. With 41,500 vehicles, the brand's deliveries in April also exceeded the previous year's level by 5.8 per cent. Particularly successful has been the T-Series range with 64,500 Transporter, Caravelle, Multivan and California models sold - an increase of 9.4 per cent. The sales surge comes as the Transporter, now in its sixth generation, extended its award-winning year to claim both Best Medium Van and overall Van of the Year at this year's UK Trade Van Driver Awards. The Transporter's handling, efficient engines and market-leading residual values helped to give it the edge over its rivals in the judges' minds. The latest Transporter comes in a range of wheelbases, roof heights, load volumes and payload options to cater for a variety of needs within the medium van sector. It's available as a passenger carrier, panel van or more recently chassis cab and dropside variants, the Transporter comes equipped with range of 2.0-litre engines with either manual of DSG transmissions and two- and four-wheel drive. The Transporter also comes with a comprehensive list of safety equipment which includes Driver Alert and Automatic Post Collision Braking Systems coming as standard. Priced from £22,281 (including VAT) the Transporter has additional safety feature options including adaptive cruise control, city emergency braking and high beam assist.

Will it be a feast of football or just a bloated mess?

THE BBC's documentary about Euro 96 this week left a lot of us feeling nostalgic about what it felt like to believe England actually had a chance to win a major tournament.

Judging by England's warmup games, it's a feeling that's unlikely to be rekindled this summer, but just like the tournament 20 years ago, it's one where an expanded format will be utilised for the first time.

The competition in 1996 was the first European Championship finals to feature 16 teams and, in time, that was shown to be a good decision as the extra teams didn't dilute the quality of the football on show too much.

It was also a simple format to follow; the top two teams in each group qualified for the quarter finals so we didn't have to wrack our brains over different permutations.

This year, thanks to the disgraced former UEFA president Michel Platini, the amount of teams involved in France is up to 24 – the same amount that competed for the World Cup until 1994.

It has meant an extra two groups and the introduction of a 'round of 16,' meaning Euro 2016 will involve 51 games; an increase of 20 from the tournament in 2012.

That's 51 games on the telly in the space of a month. Depending on your perspective, that's either manna from heaven or a bloody nightmare.

But the worry with the expanded field is whether the overall standard, particularly in the group games, will be up to the level we saw in the last two Euros, which were both good competitions.

This was down to the fact that there weren't many weak teams in either, but you wonder what teams like Albania,

Sport on sunday

Hungary or Republic o Ireland are going to add.

I've picked these teams out as they are among those who have benefitted from the tournament's expansion yet look painfully short of quality (make your own England jokes at this point).

Then there's the format. Sixteen out of the 24 teams will qualify out of their group, which means you're going to have to play pretty badly to end up on the plane home before the knock-out stage begins.

It also means we've now got to pore over which four of the third-placed teams will scrape through.

Now, instead of knowing that the winner of Group A will play the runner-up in Group B and so on, it's become a convoluted mess – you're going to have to look it up, there's not enough space on the page for me to explain it.

The main benefit is more Home Nations interest since the 1958 World Cup, which should be enough to keep us all invested to prevent the group stage from feeling like too much of a drag

The biggest European Championship yet gets underway in just five days. Fingers crossed, we'll be able to call it the best one yet in a month's time.

Jones pleased as Pelly stays

FOOTBALL

LUTON Town manager Nathan Jones believes there is much more to come from Pelly Ruddock Mpanzu after the talented young midfielder signed a new two-year contract at Kenilworth Road.

After a succession of hamstring injuries had severely limited his game time for over year, Ruddock Mpanzu was finally able to feature more regularly after Jones took over as Hatters boss in January.

Having only made eight appearances before Christmas, the 22-year-old was able to score twice in the 16 games he played in under Jones and his performances were enough for the Town boss to offer him a new deal that will take him to the end of the 2017/18 season.

Jones told the club's website: "I see Pelly as an important player for me – at his best he brings a great energy and drive to the team.

"It was a priority for me to secure him on a new contract and to be fair he has been keen to get it all sorted out early too.

"There is much more to come from Pelly and I'm sure all Luton fans will be looking forward to seeing that progress in the seasons to come."

that progress in the seasons to come."
Ruddock Mpanzu initially signed for Luton on loan from West Ham United in November 2013 before he made the move permanent in January 2014.

He has made 66 appearances in total for the Hatters, scoring five goals, with his injury problems preventing him from showing the Kenilworth Road faithful what he is capable of on a more regular hasis

Town fans will certainly be hoping after his spectacular winner against Dagenham & Redbridge towards the end of the season that there is more where that came from.

Ruddock Mpanzu said: "I've always believed the club was the best place for me to continue developing as a player.

"I'm enjoying my football under the manager and can't wait to get going again next season."

Jordan in GB push

BY NICK SMITH

nick.smith@lutononsunday.co.ul

A BOXER is looking for a 'perfect end' to the season as he prepares for his first trial for Team GB.

Jordan Reynolds, 21, won the middleweight Three Nations championship in Dunfermline, Scotland, last weekend after beating Scottish champion John Docherty.

Reynolds was called up as a last minute replacement for English champion Ben Whittaker, and seized his opportunity. Reynolds said: "Winning this is huge, it's my biggest title yet.

"I knew it was going to be a tough fight, given that he's a southpaw and about 6'3".

"I just outboxed him, I let him come at me and picked him off.

"The season is coming to and end and it's been a perfect conclu-sion to a near perfect season."

This season has seen the Luton middleweight crowned King of the Ring at a European tournament in Sweden, reach the finals of the Elite Boxing Championships and now won the Three Nations gold. He is now focused on the end of the month, which would just add the icing on the cake.

Despite Luton's proud history in the sport, the town has never had a representative in the Great Britain squad.

For Reynolds, currently a member of Team England, this would be a dream come true.

He said: "I'm currently boxing at a European level but have mixed it up with some of the best amateurs in the world.

"This would allow me to push on and face more top boxers.

"It's all about improving myself." Reynolds shows no nerves about the upcoming challenge.

And there's no reason he should be, given that his Three Nations opponent is a current member of Team GB. He added: "I feel confident about my chances of making the squad, I just need one last push. Making the squad would be unreal and it would round off what's already been a dream season.

The three day trial beings on Friday June 24.

Ali beats pain barrier to reach Grand Final

Luton amateur golfer Syed Ali qualified for the International Grand Final of the William Hunt Trilby Tour with a top-five finish in the Championship of Scotland on Tuesday. Ali, a member of Stockwood Park Golf Club, led for most of the day at Dalmahoy, near Edinburgh, before four of his fellow competitors eventually overhauled him in the evening.

But a joint-fifth place finish represented quite an achievement for the 50-year-old architectural design consultant in a competition made up of over 100 amateur golfers from around Great Britain.

It is all the more impressive considering Ali was suffering from a bad shoulder at the time and needed to take pain relief before taking part and carding a score of 33 points. He will also be rewarded with a television appearance as Sky Sports will be showing highlights of the Trilby Tour later in the year. The Grand Final will take place on Wednesday 31 August at the Forest of Arden Marriott Hotel and Country Club.

Town make double swoop to continue rebuilding job

NEW FACES: Johnny Mullins and Danny Hylton both won promotion with Oxford United last season

BY MATT WRIGHT sport@lsnmedia.co.uk

It's been a busy week in the transfer market for Luton Town after former Oxford United duo Johnny Mullins and Danny Hylton signed within a couple of hours of each other on Tuesday.

Luton manager Nathan Jones' remodelling of the squad this summer has got off to a busy start after a dozen players departed Kenilworth Road following the end of the season.

Alan Sheehan has since made his loan move from Bradford permanent and the arrivals of Mullins and Hylton mean Jones can call upon two players who were promoted with Oxford in the last campaign.

Mullins played a key role in helping them into League One, as the 30-year-old defender appeared 40 times in the league for Michael Appleton's side. It was the second time he had helped a team climb out of League Two, having done the same with Rotherham in the 2012/13 season.

In his three seasons with the U's, Mullins made a total of 116 appearances, with the last of those coming against the Hatters on April 16 as Town ran out 3-2 winners.

Mullins said: "I'm over the moon to be here. When a club like Luton gave me a call, it was a no brainer – I wanted to join. I'm here to achieve promotion, and hopefully to play in League One with Luton.

"I'm a centre half, I like to play out when I can but it's defence first with me. I've come here to get promoted and to play in front of some top-drawer fans.

"I'm chuffed to bits to be signing for Luton, and hopefully come the end of the seawe'll all be smiling.'

Hylton was a reliable source of goals for Oxford last season, as the striker scored 14 in all competitions, including one against the Hatters in the aforementioned win over the U's. In total, the 27-yearold scored 30 goals in 101 appearances during his two seasons at the Kassam Stadium and he arrives after he turned down a new contract there.

Hylton said: "It's an honour to join Luton - it's a massive club. Obviously last season I was playing against Luton, they've got a fantastic style of play especially since Nathan came on board. I'm excited to be here.

"I like to think that I bring more than just goals to the team, I like to work hard and try and create goals for other players too. If other players are scoring and we're winning, then that's perfect.

"I give 100 per cent every single game, I'm a big believer in that. I believe if you are running around, and working hard, then the rest will come – if there's 11 players on the pitch doing that, then you'll be successful."
